

A Contrast - Talford Place SE15

Date

c. 1958

Primary Maker

William Keddie Forrester

Medium

Water-colour

Description

After the demolition of numerous houses during the Second World War, pre-fabricated bungalows were erected around the borough. With fitted kitchens, bathrooms and a garden, they proved popular. Many people were unhappy when they eventually had to move into flats. A block of flats has taken the place of these prefabs, but others survive in Ivydale Road, Nunhead.
